HOWES P-70. Dornbusch II, 40. "Much of this unit history consists of the author's own and many experiences" Nevins I, p.142.

5. (ALABAMA REGIMENTAL). [WILLETT, Joseph J., ed.]. History of Company B. (Originally Pickens Planters) 40th Alabama Regiment, Confederate States Army, 1862 to 1865. [Anniston, AL: Norwood, 1902]. 1st ed. 89pp. Orig. cloth. Cloth faintly speckled, else very good or better. $2500.00
HOWES W-437, "aa." Dornbusch II, 76. Most of the work is a verbatim printing of the diary of Capt. Elbert D. Willett, the editor's father. The diary was kept as an official record of the company and thus all activities including skirmishes, furloughs, deaths by disease and those sustained under fire, marches, etc., are described in detail. There are also extracts from the diary of Sgt. John H. Curry, also of the 40th Regiment. A superb account of day-to-day life in the army of Tennessee.

6. ALBAUGH, William A., III. Tyler, Texas, C.S.A. Harrisburgh, [1958]. 1st ed. Illus. maps. 235pp. Fine in d/j. $75.00

11. ANDERSON, Archer. The Campaign and Battle of Chickamauga. An Address. Richmond: William Ellis Jones, Steam Book and Job Printer, 1881. 1st ed. 38pp. Later cloth, original printed wrappers bound in. Near fine. $300.00

Dornbusch III, 2607. Presentation inscription on the front wrapper, "Col. Arnold A. Rand, Compliments of Carleton McCarthy, May 31, 1883." Carleton McCarthy served in the Richmond Howitzers in the Civil War and wrote about his experiences in Detailed Minutiae of Soldier Life in the Army of Northern Virginia, 1861-1865, published in 1882. Arnold Rand was Colonel of the 4th Massachusetts Cavalry. Anderson served under Joseph E. Johnston as Adjutant-General of the Army of Tennessee during the closing months of the war. His account of Chickamauga pays tribute to officers on both sides, and he reserves special recognition for Union general and fellow Virginian George Thomas.

12. ANDERSON, Charles C. Fighting by Southern Federals. New York: The Neale Publishing Company, 1912. 1st ed. 408pp. Orig. cloth. Near fine. $300.00

Dornbusch III, 1102. Anderson asserts that more than 600,000 Southerners, nearly two-thirds of the number that fought in the Confederate armies, were enlisted in Federal armies and fought against the South. Included in these ranks were Northerners of Southern birth and white and black men living in various Southern states: Tennessee, Missouri, Kentucky, Virginia, etc. The major portion of the work, however, is a chronological history of the war which highlights contributions made by Southern Federals and a list of those who commanded brigades or naval vessels. Krick 8.

13. ANDERSON, Lucy London. North Carolina Women of the Confederacy. Fayetteville, NC: Published by the Author, 1926. 1st ed. 141pp. Plates. Orig. pictorial wrappers. P&W 4721. Rare. First, and only, edition, written by a Confederate artillery commander who introduced new guns made for him in Richmond. Dedicated to Stonewall Jackson only one month before he was mortally wounded by accidental fire of his own troops at Chancellorsville. The 61 plates at the back show the maneuvering, sponging, loading, ramming, and pointing of cannon, plus bugle signals. "It would have been better to have had wood-cut rather than lithographic illustrations, as the cuts would then have been on the same page with the explanations of the various maneuvers. The blockade renders this at this time impossible."

15. [ARCHER, W. P.] History of the Battle of Atlanta also Confederate Songs and Poems. Knoxville, GA: C.B.H. Moncrieff, 1940. 1st ed. 35pp. Portrait frontis., portraits. Orig. pictorial wrappers. Fine. Rare, Worldcat locates only nine copies. Dornbusch III, 2694. "A brief, vividly written, popular series of sketches of the battle for Atlanta" Nevins, I, p.22. $125.00

17. (ARKANSAS REGIMENTAL). COLLIER, Calvin L. "They'll Do To Tie To!" The Story of the Third Regiment, Arkansas Infantry, C.S.A. [Little Rock, AR]: Major James D. Warren, [Pioneer Press, 1959]. 1st ed. vi,233 pp. Maps. Orig. cloth. Faint scattered foxing to endpapers, else near fine. Scarce. The 3rd Arkansas was the only regiment from that state to fight in Lee's army. They formed a part of Hood's Texas Brigade and gave conspicuous service at Chickamauga and Gettysburg. Contains muster rolls, list of Appomattox parolees, and list of recruits. Dornbusch II, 113. $75.00
18. ASHBY, Thomas A[Imond]. The Valley Campaigns: Being the Reminiscences of a Non-Combatant While Between the Lines in the Shenandoah Valley During the War of the States. New York: The Neale Publishing Company, 1914. 1st ed. 327 pp. Orig. cloth. $400.00
Although Thomas Ashby did not participate in the war, his allegiance and sentiments were tied to the South. "From his home in Front Royal, young Ashby witnessed Jackson's 1862 campaign, a succession of Federal occupations and life in and around a Confederate hospital in the town. He was caught up in the midst of the May 23, 1862, battle at Front Royal, which he aptly describes as 'more like a police riot than a fight between soldiers.' The valuable personal reminiscences are interlarded with considerable superficial summarization of events elsewhere in Virginia, but the first-person accounts of four years of war in the Valley are worth searching out." Krick II. A near fine copy.
19. ASHE, Samuel A'Court. Collection of five pamphlets: George Davis, Attorney-General of the Confederate States. An Address. Rare, Worldcat locates 13 copies. Dornbusch II, 1357. Haynes I, 4213. Nicholson 176. Crocker, a Virginian, was a graduate of Pennsylvania College (now Gettysburg College). He served in the Virginia Assembly. Crocker enlisted as the adjunt of the 9th Virginia Infantry on 19 April 1861, receiving his first wound at the Battle of Malvern Hill on 1 July 1862. During the Battle of Gettysburg he was a member of Armistead's brigade and participated in Pickett's Charge, where he was wounded a second time. Left wounded on the field, he was taken prisoner. He was given, unusually, a free pass into town so that he could buy a new suit. In Gettysburg, he was treated with kindness and met many friends from his undergraduate days. "It was a queer, incongruous sight to see a Rebel lieutenant in gray mingling in the crowd, and apparently at home. They could see, however, many of the principal citizens of the town cordially accosting, and warmly shaking by the hand, that Rebel." Reflecting on his reception, Crocker wrote: "It was a queer episode—a peace episode in the midst of war. This experience of mine taught me that the hates and prejudices engendered by the war were national, not individual; that individual relations and feelings were but little affected in reality; and that personal contact was sufficient to restore kindliness and friendship."

Internally fine, and in near fine condition overall. $1750.00
Privately printed by Admiral Du Pont's widow for distribution to family and friends. The bulk of the book contains Rear Admiral Samuel Francis Du Pont's dispatches and letters during the Union blockade of the Confederacy in the first two years of the Civil War. At the time, he was in command of the USS Wabash operating off the coast of South Carolina. Included are his official blockading instructions and other orders, as well as voluminous correspondence with Navy Secretary Gideon Welles and other American naval commanders. Justifiably lauded for his enforcement of the blockade, Du Pont was blamed in 1863 for his failure to recapture Charleston, and was relieved of his command. Altogether, his dispatches and letters are an important first-person account of the development and execution of Union naval strategy in the Atlantic in the first two years of the Civil War. During the Mexican-American War, Du Pont commanded the Cyane, a ship in Commodore Stockton's Pacific fleet, and he was a leader in American efforts to capture California for the United States. The first thirty-eight pages of this volume contain dispatches and correspondence regarding operations off the Pacific during that war, including while was engaged in transporting Fremont's troops to San Diego.
Admiral Du Pont's family issued a second volume, focusing exclusively on Du Pont's journals from the Mexican-American War, in 1885. It has become a part of bookseller lore that these volumes were each published in an edition of only fifty volumes (see the Eberstadt entry noted below, as well as the preceding entry in that catalogue), though availability in institutional collections would argue for a larger edition limitation.
