A significant compilation of five important tracts relating to the British colonies in North America on the verge of the French & Indian War, assembled by a noted Scottish financier. Included in this volume is a work by George Whitefield on Georgia and the value of the British colonies in North America, two tracts by Henry McCulloch on strengthening the colonies and improving relations with Native Americans, and two other works on the balance of power in North America among European nations. This volume bears the bookplate of Sir William Forbes of Pitsligo (1739-1806), an important Scottish banker and authority on finance. The volume is comprised of:
  - 1) WHITEFIELD, George. A Brief Account of the Rise, Progress, and Present Situation, of the Orphan-House in Georgia. In a Letter to a Friend. Edinburgh: Thos. Lumiden and Company, 1748. 16pp. plus folding letterpress table. Rare early Georgia account, with an unrecorded folding table. The folding table, titled "An Account of the Orphans, and For [sic] Children, that have been Maintained and Educated at, and are now in, the Orphan House at Georgia," is unrecorded by De Renne, Sabin or ESTC. It lists the children's names, their parents or guardians, dates taken in or placed out, to whom sent, and places of abode. SABIN 103501. ESTC N15764. De RENNE, p.125.
  - 2) [LITTLE, Otis]. The State of Trade in the Northern Colonies Considered; with an Account of Their Produce, and a Particular Description of Nova Scotia. London: G. Woodfall, 1748. 84pp. 1/2 title. Inscribed by the author to Mr. Stone, on 1/2 title. "This pamphlet was written to demonstrate the value of the North American colonies to Great Britain, and in order to encourage trade with them....The fact of the importance of settling affairs in the newly acquired colony of Nova Scotia was raised, and its value as a barrier against the French in Canada and Louisbourg was stressed" - Lande. HOWES L-388. Kress 4916. Lande 539. Sabin 41523. TPL 209.
  - 3) [McCULLOCH, Henry]. The Wisdom and Policy of the French in the Construction of Their Great Offices, so as Best to Answer the Purposes of Extending Their Trade and Commerce, and Enlarging Their Foreign Settlements. With Some Observations in Relation to the Disputes now Subsisting between the English and French Colonies in America. London: R. Baldwin, 1755. [2], 133pp. A rare pamphlet by London merchant and North Carolina land speculator Henry McCulloch, recommending better treatment of the Indians, and a closer alliance with the Five Nations. McCulloch was the second largest land holder in North Carolina after Lord Granville and lived in the colony for seven years, serving as a commissioner of revenues from the Carolinas. Upon his return to London he authored two pamphlets concerning the American colonies in the hopes of receiving another appointment. Both are rare. Sabin 43122. HOWES M-77. ESTC T83636.

4) [McCULLOCH, Henry]. A Miscellaneous Essay Concerning the Courses Pursued by Great Britain in the Affairs of Her Colonies: with Some Observations on the Great Importance of Our Settlements in America, and the Trade Thereof. London: R. Baldwin, 1755. [2], 134pp. Rare pamphlet by a prominent North Carolina landowner, one of the earliest advocates of a union of the American colonies. In this tract he argues that the independent governments of the various colonies make it difficult to formulate a united commercial and defense policy, and calls for the establishment of a board of trade to regulate commerce and to increase the authority of the Crown. He also recommends better treatment and closer alliances with the Indians, especially the Iroquois, to balance the French threat. McCulloch (or McCulloh) was the second largest land holder in North Carolina after Lord Granville and lived in the colony for seven years, serving as a commissioner of revenues. Upon his return to London, he authored two pamphlets concerning the American colonies in the hopes of receiving another appointment. Both are rare. An important political statement at the beginning of the French and Indian War, written by a prominent resident of North Carolina. HOWES M-75. Sabin 43123. TPL 6416. Thornton 8080. ESTC T57084.

5) [ANONYMOUS]. State of the British and French Colonies in North America, with Respect to Number of People, Forces, Forts, Indians, Trade and Other Advantages.... London: A. Millar, 1755. [2], 190 [i.e. 150]pp. Without the map found in very few copies. An important pamphlet, written as two letters, placing the blame for the situation in North America on the bad management in America as well as Europe, and including remarks on Washington's mission to the Ohio and the importance of that region and the claims of the French, with some material on Nova Scotia. The anonymous author draws upon the writings of Archibald Kennedy and Cadwallader Colden, and on Franklin's Observations upon the Increase of Mankind (then circulating in manuscript, but as yet unpublished), and William Smith's Brief State of Pennsylvania. John Huske was incensed by the present work, especially by the author's impartiality and the criticism of the British colonists' treatment of the Indians, and voiced his anger in his Present State of North America, published the same year. "This anonymous work is a calm and dispassionate statement of the case of England against the encirclement policy of France. In emphasizing the importance of the Indians to the English, the author exposes the abuses which the Indians had suffered at the hands of the colonists" - Streeter. Quite rare. HOWES S903. 4. (FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN). The Massachusetts Spy or, Thomas's Boston Journal. Numb. 173. Boston: Printed by Isaiah Thomas, May 26, 1774. 2 leaves, folio, 18-1/4" x 11-3/4". Tiny hole in first leaf, costing a few letters, else very good or better. $3500.00 Evans 13430. Deals with Thomas Hutchinson, governor of Massachusetts, and his troubles with the Massachusetts Assembly. In December 1772, Benjamin Franklin, while residing in London as agent for the House of Representatives of Massachusetts, received a package containing 13 letters by an anonymous sender. The letters were correspondence of Massachusetts governor Thomas Hutchinson and lieutenant governor Andrew Oliver with English authorities. In these letters Hutchinson explained the revolts in the colony against taxes and recommended that colonial government should be made independent from provincial assemblies and the gradual reduction "by degrees" of English liberties. He also urged to send more troops to keep rebels under control advocating repressive measures against agitators in the colonies. Understanding the nature of these letters, Franklin sent them to Samuel Adams who was the head of the Massachusetts Committee of Correspondence. Franklin authorized the letters to be shown to members of the Committee but not copied or published.

Massachusetts speaker Thomas Cushing wrote a letter to Franklin asking if he could ease the restriction of its circulation. Because of its inflammatory nature, Cushing presented the content of the letters before the Massachusetts House on 2 June 1773. The House concluded that Hutchinson intended to overthrow the constitution and decided to appoint a committee to petition the crown for Hutchinson's and Oliver's removal. Despite Franklin's wishes and because of public interest the letters were published in the Boston Gazette in June 1773 causing political and civil revolt in the city. In September 1773 Franklin wrote two satires that criticized British attitude towards its colonies.

After the Boston Tea Party in December 1773, Massachusetts sent a petition to London requesting the removal of Hutchinson and Oliver. This issue of The Spy publishes an account of the discussion in Parliament filled with disdain for the people of Massachusetts and their demands. This issue also includes an epitaph for Hutchinson, which ends: "Let Posterity remember with Gratitude The illustrious Dr. Franklin (not Less successful in disarming political Than natural Clouds of their Mischief) For this Discovery. Although this treacherous Governor Was defended by one of the most artful British Counsellors, yet he was Condemned by a Jury of all the Freemen in Britain and America, To be hanged, and burned. May 3d 1774, in the City of Philadelphia in the Presence of many thousand Spectators, Who while they exulted in his Punishment, lamented that he could suffer but Once To expiate the high Treason he had committed against his Country."

Second issue of the first authorized edition, with the Table of Contents and Index sections added about March 1773, per Lowndes. The original collected edition of the letters, which were first published in the London PUBLIC ADVERTISER from Jan. 21, 1769 to Jan. 21, 1772 under the pseudonym of "Junius" (possibly Sir Philip Francis). "...'Junius' poured brilliantly slanderous invective upon Tory-minded English ministers, especially the Duke of Grafton, for a series of 'inconsistent measures' which allegedly ruined England and drove the colonies 'into excesses little short of rebellion.' Vehement, lucid, frequently reprinted in English and colonial newspapers, the letters were polemical masterpieces with such extraordinary knowledge and appreciation of contemporary colonial opinion that they lent moral support to the early revolutionary cause. 'Junius' opposed the Tea Duty, but upheld the legality of the Stamp Act, and prophesied (Dec. 19, 1769) that the colonies aimed at independence" - DAH. Translated by George Reinhold Forster, after the Swedish first edition of 1753-1761 and the rare first English edition published in Warrington in 1770-1771. "One of the most important and reliable eighteenth-century accounts of American natural history, social organization, and political situation. Kalm gives especially important accounts of the American Swedish settlements"--Streeter Sale, 823. Kalm was in America in 1748-1749 and made a notable trip into the back country of New York with the naturalist, John Bartram, as well as traveling in more settled regions. He was one of the most notable of early American naturalists, and made important contributions to the study of American botany.

In his dedication, Forster writes the text will "display to the British nation, the circumstances of a country which is so happy as to be under its protection." While this statement might have expressed colonial sentiment during the years of the book's first production, by the time the Warrington edition was produced such affection for Great Britain had clearly subsided. A fundamental work of early American natural history.

HOWES L36, "aa." CLARK I:268. SABIN 38724. SERVIES 820 (another ed). One of the best personal narratives by a soldier in the American Revolution, used by Robert Graves as the basis for his two historical novels. Lamb was a sergeant in the Royal Welsh Fusiliers who went to Canada in 1776 and was captured the following year in Burgoyne's defeat at Saratoga. He escaped and made his way to New York, re-entered the army, and served in southern campaigns until the fall of Yorktown. He again became a prisoner of war, escaped, and after many adventures reached New York, where he remained until the British evacuation in 1783. Besides his own narrative, he gives a good account of the history of the war.

The first American edition, and overall second edition of this widely used military manual; the first was published in London in 1773. One of the first military manuals published in Revolutionary America, it was used to train soldiers on both sides during the Revolutionary War. This comprehensive manual covers almost all aspects of military duties and procedures, including dress, marching, entrenchment, strategy, and numerous formations. There is also an interesting appendix of moral and military aphorisms, such as, "The more eminent a man is, the more is expected from him," and (the rather obvious) "Never appear in an open place of country with an inferior force."

Richard Lambart, 6th Earl of Cavan (1722-78) was an Anglo-Irish soldier, peer, and politician. Benedict, Acts and Laws of the Thirteen Original Colonies and States 270. Felcone, New Jersey Books 156. An important volume of colonial American laws, the third, and scarcest, official compilation fundamental laws, constitutions, and documents for New Jersey, covering from 1663-64 to 1702, with the session laws from 1668 to 1701. "Prior to the middle of the 18th century all of New Jersey's fundamental documents remained in manuscript form only" --Felcone. "This handsome volume, generally known as Leaming and Spicer's Laws, was prepared under the authority of an act of Assembly passed in 1752, and is the largest work issued from the press of Wm. Bradford."--The Charlemagne Tower Collection. Subscribers were solicited beginning in February 1755; the compilers, chiefly by Samuel Nevill and Samuel Smith, spent almost two years preparing the text. The printing, under the supervision of Leaming and Spicer, took three more years, until it was ready for delivery in May 1758. The subscribers had taken 170 copies, and the editors say, in the Pennsylvania Journal, 11 May 1758, "a number of copies yet remain not subscribed for," and "any person may be supplied" until "the 17th of July next, after which we will not further extend the sale." See Felcone for a detailed ten-page study of this highly important colonial New Jersey book.

With the ownership signature of Richard Peters. Peters (1704-1776) was born in Liverpool. He was well educated, attending Westminster School and the University of Leyden before studying law at the Inner Temple for five years, in accordance with his father's wishes. Finally, after a short period of study at Oxford, Peters was ordained a deacon in the Church of England in 1730 and as a priest the following year. Peters came to Philadelphia in 1735 for religious work. He served on and off with Christ Church between the late 1730s and early 1750s. Peters became a trusted official of the Penn family, appointed in 1743 as Secretary of the Land Office for the proprietary family, Secretary of the Province and Clerk of the Council. He held these positions for a quarter of a century, and in 1749 was also appointed as a Council member. Peters was instrumental in the creation of the defensive union of the colonies, serving as one of Pennsylvania's commissioners to the Albany Congress of 1754 with the approval of the Penn proprietors. During this time, Peters worked closely with James Logan and with Benjamin Franklin. According to Benjamin Franklin's own account, Peters is said to be the first person Benjamin Franklin consulted about establishing a school in Philadelphia. Peters was one of the founding trustees of the Academy and College of Philadelphia (now the University of Pennsylvania). During the French and Indian War, when Benjamin Franklin headed an anti-proprietary faction, Franklin and Peters had a falling out. Peters and Rev. William Smith worked together to have Peters replace Franklin as the board's president. Peters served as the president of Penn's board of trustees from 1756 to 1764 and then, in 1769 and 1770, as its treasurer. Peters was involved with other important Philadelphia civic and cultural institutions: a director of the Library Company of Philadelphia (1750-1764), a manager of Pennsylvania Hospital (1751-1752), and a member of the American Philosophical Society (1769-1776). By 1762 Peters had amassed a respectable fortune and retired from his proprietary offices to his country home at Belmont, just outside the then city of Philadelphia. That year Peters was made rector of Christ Church and St. Peter's, holding this position until 1775. Richard Peters died in 1776, during the early stages of the American Revolution.

HOWES D-37. American Controversy 75-95g. Sabin 18347. Reese, Revolutionary Hundred 37 (ref). Fourth edition, after previous editions of the same year, of this important political tract, replying to the American Congress' "Declaration...setting forth the causes and necessity of their taking up arms," which is printed in the rear of the pamphlet. Authorship of this work is in doubt, Adams crediting James Macpherson, who was retained by Lord North as a political writer, and Howes attributed authorship to Sir John Dalrymple. The pamphlet sets forth the ministerial position on the situation in America, and was widely disseminated. This is the fourth of over twenty editions.

Compendious View of the Colonies Planted by the English on the Continent of North America. London: Printed for Richard Phillips, 1804-7. 4tos. 5 Vols. xxxii,456; vii,539; viii,460; vii,589; vii,[1],669,[4]pp., plus twelve folding maps, three plates (two bound in as frontispieces), and one in-text illustration. Contemporary speckled calf, tooled in gilt, rebounded in period style with matching leather, gilt-ruled raised spine bands, compartments decorated in blind, brown leather spine labels. Bookplate of Lambton Castle on each front pastedown. Very light tanning, an occasional fox mark, and offsetting from plates and maps. A handsome set. $8500.00
HOWES M-317 "aa." Reese, Revolutionary Hundred 92. Sabin 44788. The rare large paper quarto British edition and, according to Howes, the best edition of Marshall's classic biography of Washington. "After the able, accurate and comprehensive work of Chief Justice Marshall, it would be presumptuous to attempt a historical biography of Washington" - Jared Sparks. The first American edition and this first British edition contain a history of the colonies in the first volume which was omitted from later editions. Howes calls for ten maps and six plates, but the present copy conforms to the list of maps and plates in the rear of the fifth volume.

46. MARSHALL, John]. Vie de George Washington. Collection de Planches. Paris: Dentu, 1807. 1st ed. 4to. 2 leaves. Portrait frontis., 12 maps (including 7 folding maps), 3 additional plates. 1st French ed. Atlas volume only. Orig. 3/4 calf and marbled boards. Rebacked in matching period style, some rubbing to boards, lacking calf at corners, new endpapers, very old faint water stain to upper outer corners, faint scattered foxing, else a very good copy. $2000.00

*HOWES M-317. Sabin 44793. First French edition. While the Philadelphia edition of the Atlas volume had 10 maps, this edition has 12 maps. There are also three plates that did not appear in the American edition: "Orme sous lequel Guillaume Penn conclut, à Kensington, son premier Traité avec les Indiens," "Mont-Vernon, habitation du général Washington, située dans la Virginie," and "Vue de la ville de Washington, en 1800." 48. [MARYLAND]. Laws of Maryland, enacted at a session of Assembly, begun and held at the City of Annapolis, on Tuesday, the Eleventh Day of July, in the Eighteenth Year of the Dominion of the Right Honourable Charles, Lord Baron of Baltimore [sic]... Annapolis: Printed and Sold by William Parks, and Edmund Hall, 1732. Folio (11 1/2 x 7 inches). [2], 43pp [i.e. 45] pp. Title with woodcut arms of the colony of Maryland. Interleaved with blanks at a period date. Period manuscript inscription dated 1732 signed by Samuel Ogle. Contemporary sheep, bordered in blind, bound by William Parks. Provenance: Sheriff of Somerset County, Maryland (presentation inscription by Ogle dated 1732); Thomas Hayward (d. 1751, period inscriptions and signatures); Capt. Levin Adams (early signature); William Davis Allen (signature dated 1790).Housed in a black morocco box. $15,000.00

A highly important early Maryland imprint, printed and bound by famed colonial printer William Parks, notable for both the printing and binding.

William Parks arrived in Maryland in 1725, after an early printing career in Ludlow, Shropshire. He became to fourth printer to work in the colony, although only fifteen imprints from his predecessors actually survive, generally in unique copies. Parks was a well-schooled printer, according to Wroth, who stated "the office of public printer of Maryland assumed a dignity which formerly it had not possessed". Parks quickly developed a newspaper and became official printer of the colony in 1726. As this imprint demonstrates, he also had a bindery.

The present work encompasses the laws of the provincial Assembly passed during the session beginning 11 July 1732, comprising thirty acts on subjects ranging from the establishment of towns, duties and regulation on tobacco, rules governing courts, the encouragement of iron works, the prohibition of raising swine and cattle in certain areas, and other local matters. Among the more interesting Acts is one "to prevent cutting up Tobacco Plants destroying of Tobacco and Tobacco Houses," the text of which begins: "Whereas several evil-minded Persons, have of late gone about, in many Places, in great Numbers, and violently cut up the Tobacco plants growing on several Plantations..." The crime of willfully burning tobacco was hereby proclaimed to be punishable by death.

The binding on the present example is a rare example of a Maryland binding from this very early period and is attributed to Parks, who advertised himself in a 1729 issue of the Maryland Gazette as one "Who binds old Books very well and cheap."

*This copy inscribed and signed by Samuel Ogle, the Governor of Maryland, sending the laws to the Sheriff of Somerset County and with provenance to the clerk of Somerset County, Thomas Hayward (d. 1751). Wroth records five extant examples (British Library, British Museum, Maryland Historical Society, Maryland State Library and Library of Congress); ESTC adds a copy at the Huntington Library. Without errata leaves, as usual. Contemporary calf bordered in blind, raised spine bands, red morocco spine label. First thirty pages of text lightly foxed in upper margin and foreedge. Professionally restored, title page repaired, new front endpapers made with toned paper-pulp, binding mended at joints and foot of front board. Very good. $10,000.00
HOWES M-391, "b." Streeter Sale 658. European Americana 702/127. Holmes, Cotton Mather 213. Sabin 46392. Church 806. McCorkle 702.3, 680.4 (ref). Cumming, British Maps of Colonial America, pp.31-33. MapForum, Printed Maps of New England to 1780, 1702:01. Schwartz & Ehrenberg, pp.133-34. The first edition of what Streeter calls "the most famous American book of colonial times." Mather's opus is an indispensable source for the history of New England in the 17th century, both for its biographies and its history of civil, religious, and military affairs. Much of the book's value rests in its incomparable wealth of detail regarding daily life in early colonial New England. David Hall has referred to it as "a mirror of the 1690's," the decade in which most of it was written. Far from being a dull chronicle of events, the MAGNALIA... is full of lively biographical pieces, vivid descriptions of the times, and many surprising sidelights. It has been mined by all modern scholars of social history for its unsurpassed view of New England at the end of the 17th century. The map, which depicts New England, Long Island, and eastern New York, has been labeled by cartographic historian Barbara McCorkle as "the first eighteenth-century general map of New England." It was probably adopted from A New Map of New England. New York. New Iarsey. Pensilvania. Maryland. and Virginia, likely composed by Phillip Lea in 1680. A landmark in colonial New England history, and a book of increasing rarity.

50. MATHER, Increase. Kometographia, or A Discourse Concerning Comets; Where the Nature of Blazing Stars is Enquired into...As Also Two Sermons Occasioned by the Late Blazing Stars. Boston in New-England: Printed by S.G. for S.S., 1683. [8], 38, [2], 32, [14], 143, [3]pp. Near-contemporary full sheep. Minor scuffing, some edge wear and light staining to boards. Bound with blanks A1 and K8, as issued, with the two sermons, HEAVENS ALARM TO THE WORLD, and THE LATTER SIGN, each with separate titlepages, jointly collated separate from KOMETOGRAPHIA, this being the second impression of HEAVENS ALARM. Occasional minor staining or toning, minor loss to bottom corner of leaf C7 of HEAVENS ALARM, handful of leaves in KOMETOGRAPHIA trimmed close or with minor loss at edges, affecting page numbers, catchwords, or marginal notes, leaf G7 with horizontal closed tear into the text, leaf K6 with minor loss along fore edge. Contemporary and later ink notations on a few leaves, including ownership inscriptions in 1685 and 1740. Overall, in good condition. $25,000.00

A landmark work in the development of astronomy and empirical science in the British colonies in the New World, with the full complement of texts, and infrequently found thus.

Increase Mather's KOMETOGRAPHIA... and THE LATTER SIGN were prompted by the appearance of Halley's Comet over North America in 1682. Mather had written HEAVENS ALARM on the occasion of a 1680 comet, and these works demonstrate not only Mather's interest in science and natural phenomenon, but his attempts to reconcile scientific observation with religious faith. In the KOMETOGRAPHIA..., however, we find a work of a character wholly different from the two other sermons - a treatise on the nature and history of "blazing stars," written at a distance somewhat removed from their theological significance, and incorporating observations on the trajectory and physical demeanor of Halley's Comet (the former recorded by Boston printer John Foster). The work also includes allusions to the latest opinions on comets, and references to, among others, Kepler, Hevel, Tyco Brahe, and Robert Hooke. Mather intended his treatise for both the ordinary reader and one with some background in the complexities of contemporary astronomy. For the former, he included accounts of previous appearances by comets, along with some discussion of the events they were said to presage. For the latter, more sophisticated reader, Mather recorded "some things of the nature, place; motion of Comets, which only such as have some skill in Astronomy can understand."

Of this work, Mather's biographer, K.B. Murdock, states: "Both Halley and Newton completed their scientific pioneering in regard to comets, after 1680. In writing his KOMETOGRAPHIA...Mather was a contemporary student of the same phenomena...his book quite defies the classification as one which 'supports the theological cometary theory fully.' Instead, his doctrine is most cautiously expressed...He accepts some of the newest scientific tenets, and his attempt to combine them with his religious views results in a position held by others for a century after him, and not wholly abandoned today...in the matter of comets, Mather was in the front rank of his time."

A truly stellar work, and one of the most celebrated 17th century American imprints, seldom found in with its two adjoining pamphlets or with all blanks, as in this copy. HOLMES, INCREASE MATHER 67A,62B1. CHURCH 682. EVANS 352. SABIN 46696. MURDOCK, INCREASE MATHER, pp.145-47.

AMERICANA 725/138. Prepared by Samuel Mather, the son of Increase, this London edition is a revised and edited version of his brother Cotton's PARENTATOR..., issued in Boston in 1724. It seems to be much rarer than the American edition, and far more desirable as it contains an excellent portrait of Mather. The final three pages include a list of Increase Mather's writings. The editor notes that "instead of entertaining the reader with extracts of the funeral discourses made on the occasion of his death, or with a description of the place where he was buried, I shall exhibit a catalogue of his books."

 One the most significant theological works by colonial missionary Experience Mayhew, who worked amongst the tribes of Martha's Vineyard. The treatise is a response to religious ideas that sprang forth from the Great Awakening, and in particular to Jonathan Dickinson's A DISPLAY OF GOD'S SPECIAL GRACE. "Replying to Dickinson, a New Jersey Presbyterian, Mayhew admitted that he differed 'from most that are in the Calvinian scheme' and questioned Calvinist teaching on original sin, limited atonement, and predestination. His aim, however, was not so much the obliteration of Calvinism as the moderation of its most objectionable features, so that 'such as are disposed to Arminianism among us, would be more inclined to receive our doctrine'" - ANB. Lacks front endpaper, lacking corner of manuscript title without significant loss of text. With a couple later, unrelated entries in the rear. Contemporary red morocco, covers bordered with a gilt roll tool, upper cover with a central stamp in gilt with Muhlenberg's name, marbled endpapers. $17,500.00

Rare 18th century American album amicorum. The son of a noted German Lutheran pastor who came to Pennsylvania in 1742, John Peter Muhlenberg was born in Montgomery County and attended the University of Halle. In the 1760s, he travelled to Europe to continue his studies at the University of Halle. After an apprenticeship to a merchant at Lubeck, and service in the Royal American Regiment of Foot, he returned to Pennsylvania and began assisting his father in ministering to the Swedish and German Lutheran congregations near Philadelphia.

In 1771, he travelled to London to receive ordination as an Anglican Clergyman, which would allow him to become a Lutheran clergyman in Virginia, where he had accepted a position at a church in Woodstock, Virginia. In Virginia, Muhlenberg would become an ardent patriot and supporter of Patrick Henry. He would serve as chair of the Committee of Safety in Virginia's House of Burgesses (1775) and as a member of Virginia's provincial convention in 1776. Commissioned in the Continental Army, Muhlenberg would rise to the rank of Major-General, seeing action at Charleston, Brandywine, Stony Point and Yorktown. Following the war, Muhlenberg would return to Montgomery County, Pennsylvania and would be elected representative to Pennsylvania's Supreme Executive Council, subsequently serving as that body's Vice-President.

The present album amicorum was kept by Muhlenberg during his time assisting his father's ministry in the Philadelphia area in 1771, his travels to London, his return to America via Halifax, and his time in Virginia just prior to the Revolution. Some 35 friends and relatives have signed his book, adding sentiments and quotes from scripture or other sources in German, Latin, English or French. A couple entries following the war are added.

While commonplace in Europe and Great Britain, 18th century American album amicorums are very rare and were not considered fashionable on this side of the Atlantic until the 19th century. This album a lovely object, in an American red morocco binding.

Evans 18039. Gephart 14077. Hildeburn 4323. Sabin 51511; ESTC W2987. Murray's sermons is sympathetic to the American cause. The pamphlet, dedicated to Lord North, mocks the prime minister "Your Name and Transactions will stand recorded in History, with a peculiar Emphasis." This edition is noteworthy for also containing at the end a satirical piece, "The Humble Confession, Declaration, Recantation, and Apology of Benjamin Towne, Printer in Philadelphia." This attacks Benjamin Towne, publisher of America's first daily paper, The Pennsylvania Evening Post. Towne had temporarily sided with the Tories. The satire is attributed to John Witherspoon, member of the Continental Congress.

He deals chiefly with political, religious, and military questions, but has an interesting chapter, largely condensed from Josselyn, describing the state of New England; and he has paid some attention to legislative history...His style is often sprightly and he displays a sense of humor. For some aspects of the revolution of 1688-1689 his work is still useful." Contains a few Indian words and sentences, with English translations. lower gutter of each leaf. Small hole (ink burn) to lower part of second leaf costing three letters, light soiling and a few fingerprints, light even tanning. Very good. $22,500.00
 Evans 889. Church 787. ESTC R235654. Tower 578. Although easily accessible online, physical copies of this ordinance are rare. OCLC lists fewer than fifteen copies in U.S. libraries. An important early ordinance printed by famed colonial printer William Bradford, in which the crown authorizes Governor Richard Coote to establish "such and so many Courts of Judicature and publick Justice within the said Province...as [he] shall think fit and necessary...." This ordinance includes provisions to empower all justices of the peace to oversee cases of "Debt and Trespasses to the value of Forty Shillings, or under" without a jury; it also establishes a Court of Common Pleas in each county in the colony and reaffirms many components of the 1691 Judiciary Act, which established the Supreme Court of Judicature of the Province of New York. The document is dated "this fifteenth day of May in the eleventh year of the Reign of Our Sovereign Lord William the Third...1699" and signed in type on p.4 "Pursuant to an Order of Council, We do Report, this to be a proper Schem for erecting the Courts of Judicature of this Province, which is humbly submitted, W. Smith, John Guest, Ja. Graham."

The printer, William Bradford (1663-1752), was the "pioneering printer of the English middle colonies" (DAB) - the first in both Pennsylvania and New York. He originally settled in Pennsylvania, where he began operating a printing press in 1685 and a bookstore in 1688. Controversies within the Quaker community, with Bradford supporting the dissident, George Keith, led to the temporary seizure of his types and paper in 1692, and in 1693 he moved to New York as the colony's first public printer. Bradford's "accomplishments were not inconsiderable and his importance as a printer remains untarnished. His establishment was a veritable seed farm for future printers, having had as apprentices John Peter Zenger, Henry DeForest, James Parker, and his own son, Andrew; and he was himself the progenitor of four generations of printers and publishers. He printed New York's first lawbook (1694), the first published proceedings of an American legislature (New York, 1695), the first New York paper currency (1709), the first American Book of Common Prayer (1706), the first history of New York (1727), and the first copperplate plan of the city (1730), as well as New York's first newspaper" (Alexander J. Wall, Jr., "William Bradford, Colonial Printer, A Tercentenary Review," Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society, Oct. 1963, pp.361-384).

Bradford printed two editions of this ordinance in 1699: this edition is paginated and the caption title has nine lines; the other edition is unpaginated and the title has seven lines.

79. NIXON, William. Prosody Made Easy. Philadelphia: William Spotswood, 1786. [3],36pp. Marbled boards, rebacked. Quite worn, text tanned. Good. $1000.00
 Short text for teaching children orthography, prosody, and scansion of Latin meter. Also with a proposal by the author for a lengthier work on Latin grammar. The text is preceded by an effusive dedication to Benjamin Franklin, which reads, "To His Excellency Benjamin Franklin, President of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, L.L.D. &c. &c. The following Pages are Inscribed, as to a Scholar, Philosopher, and Patriot: In Remembrance of his Liberality In a Foreign Land, With all the Respect and Deference Due to a Character of such pre-eminent Worth: By his ever grateful, Humble Servant, The Author." Nixon seems to have owed his esteem for Franklin to an encounter with him while imprisoned in France. Nixon was able to send Franklin a copy of the text for the present book, and received a letter response, from which he extracted and printed a section as a recommendation of his work to the potential buyer: "I thank you for the Honor you did me, in sending me the valuable little Book of which you are the Author. I have no authority for sending Gentlemen of your profession to America at present, but think that one of your Abilities and Learning, would make a useful Member of Society in our new World, either as a Clergyman of the Church of England, or a Professor in one of our Colleges." An important and very scarce printing of a map of Boston drawn by British lieutenant Thomas Hyde Page, who was severely wounded at Bunker Hill, which draws on the surveys of Captain John Montresor. It is an expanded version of William Faden's A Plan of the Town of Boston...in 1775, which was originally published in Faden's North American Atlas in 1777. The present map, published 1 October 1778, contains the same detailed plan of Boston, but shows the larger area around the city, giving a clear idea of the placement of the rebellious American forces around Roxbury, Cambridge, and Dorchester. "Rebel lines" are shown between Roxbury and Dorchester Neck, with a note of "work begun" on Dorchester Hill. The expanded map also extends quite far eastward, showing Nachant Point, Natasket Head, Broad Sound, and many of the islands of Boston Harbor including the Light House and the Brewsters. William Faden (1749-1836) was the leading British map publisher of his time, and royal geographer to King George III.

Gimbel CS-50. HOWES P-17. Bristol & Mooney 43119. Adams, American Independence 222r. cf. Grolier American 100, 14. Reese, Revolutionary Hundred 36. A wonderful contemporary American edition of Thomas Paine's famous Common Sense. First issued by the Philadelphia printer Bell on January 9, 1776, it is almost unnecessary to comment on the importance of Common Sense. The work was written by Paine in response to the Battle of Lexington in 1775, calling not merely for a revolt against taxation, but demanding independence. The political rhetoric of Paine inflamed the desire for independence, calling for it in clear language which swept the country like wildfire. The editors of the Grolier 100 remark, "It is not too much to say that the Declaration of Independence ... was due more to Paine's Common Sense than to any other single piece of writing."

One of a dozen such editions produced in America in 1776 after the initial Philadelphia editions issued by Bell and Bradford. All American editions from 1776 are rare, and many provincial editions such as this possibly more scarce than the earliest ones. This edition has postscript dated February 14 1776.

Bronner & Fraser 10A, N4. ESTC R205173, R21970. Wing (2nd ed) P1334A, S2312. Smith, Descriptive Catalogue of Friends Books II, p.285, 671. Sabin 59723. Harvard Law Catalogue 1162. Marke 1038. An important work reporting the events of the trial of William Penn, comprised of the rare first state of the first edition of the first part and the only 17th- or 18th-century edition of the second part. ESTC asserts that the two parts were "probably intended" to be issued together, although they usually appear separately.

Protecting its established Church, England prohibited Quaker religious meetings. In 1670 William Penn held a service on Gracechurch Street in London. Penn and fellow Quaker William Mead were arrested for unlawful assembly and disturbing the King's peace, and brought to trial. The bench attempted to intimidate Penn and Mead during the trial, and then tried to do the same with the jurors, who ultimately decided in favor of the defendants. The jury disobeyed the judge's several orders to find the defendants guilty, and after issuing threats, the judge locked up the jury for a time. "The stirring call of Penn to his jury whom the judges were trying to coerce, 'Ye are Englishmen, mind your privilege: give not away your right,' and their reply 'Nor will we ever do it' is one of the most dramatic incidents in Anglo-American legal history"- Marke. The case, with the jurors' successful writ of habeas corpus, vindicated the power of juries to override instructions of the court. The trial became a bellwether for reform of the arbitrary and oppressive English court system.

Penn himself did not write the text, however, he is quoted verbatim from the trial record. Bronner and Fraser venture that Penn may have been the author of some of the material printed in the second half. The account of the trial takes up the first part of the first work, followed by a commentary on the illegal actions of the bench and a summary of legal precedents. The second part recounts the trial of the named Quaker defendants, who were convicted by the more malleable jury which replaced the one that refused to convict Penn and Meade. "The trial plays an important role in the emergent principle of jury independence and a key role in Penn's career as a political actor during the 1670s, culminating in his American colonizing enterprise" - Murphy.

This account of the trial went through several printings in 1670 and later years; the present work is the first state of the first edition of the first part and the only 17th- or 18th-century printing of the second part. The first state of the first part was "probably printed shortly after 5 Sept. 1670, the last day of the trial," according to Bronner and Fraser. Both Sabin and Smith assert the first edition titlepage had the word "ASSERTED" misspelled "ASSRTEED," and was reset throughout to produce the first part of the current work. However, more recent scholarship by Carroll Frey in "How Penn's Printer Worked: A Study of the Penn-Mead Trial Book" as reported by Bronner and Fraser contradicts Sabin and Smith, asserting the edition with the misspelled titlepage is, in fact, the second issue of the third edition.

The first part here satisfies seven of the eight first state issue points enumerated by Bronner and Fraser, from page 58 reading "68" to the pointing finger in the margin of page 40. The only issue point at odds with Bronner and Fraser's first state is the last one, with the text here ending "and unlimited wills" on page 49, which Bronner and Fraser assign to the third state. The present copy also has the stop-press correction with the slash line before the name "Bushel" on page 5, which the bibliography still assigns to the first state. It is possible this copy was a late-assembled first state with a slightly later last gathering, which would be the strictest interpretation of Bronner and Fraser. It is overwhelmingly the first state of the first part of the work.

Penn's trial was a dramatic and important moment in English legal history, and one of the more familiar and important episodes in the life of the founder of Pennsylvania.

105. [PENN, William]. Tears Wip'd Off, or the Second Essay of the Quakers by Way of Poetry: Occasioned by the Coronation of James and Mary. Written in the Sincerty of the Spirit, by W.P. a Servant to the Light. London: Printed by J. P. for Henry Playford, near the Temple-Church, 1685. Folio. 1st ed. 4pp. Early 20th-century 3/4 green morocco and cloth, gilt-ruled spine, marbled endpapers, T.e.g. A very good or better copy. $3500.00
An excessively rare work. First and only edition of Penn's coronation poem. Worldcat locates five copies. Wing (2nd ed.) P138; ESTC (RLIN) R005325. Hazlitt records the title in his Bibliographical Collections and Notes on Early English Literature, made during the years 1893-1903, published in 1903. He merely records the title, but gives no indication, whatever, of the whereabouts of the copy cited. The reason for Penn's excursion into verse is easily understood. Penn hailed James II's accession to the throne with high hopes. James had been his father's friend, and, in a certain sense, his own guardian. He considered him to be sincerely averse to religious persecution, and believed that under his auspices a golden age of Liberty and Justice might be inaugurated. The King encouraged his hopes. Penn resided first at Holland House, then at Windsor. He was frequently closeted for hours with James, was denounced as a Catholic, or even a Jesuit, by some, and courted as a royal favorite by others.

This copy belonged to the English book collector Narcissus Luttrell (1657-1732). As was his scrupulous practice, he recorded the price "1d" and the date purchased 22 April 1685. The coronation of James and Mary was the next day 23 April.

Bronner & Fraser, William Penn's Published Writings 2C. Wing P1390. Smith 2:283:1. Whiting 115:9. Third edition, after the first London printing of 1668, of Penn's first defense of Quakerism. This edition includes the first appearance of the "Cautionary Postscript," which warns that time is running out on the souls of misguided Catholics and Protestants. "The passion of a new convert is clearly evident in this short pamphlet in which WP denounced the wickedness and errors of Catholics and Protestants alike and declared that Quakers alone hold the key to 'Life and Salvation.' Not yet caught up in the pamphlet war that Friends waged against their enemies, WP apparently issued this blast against all other Christians out of sheer exuberance during his first months as a Quaker" - Bonner & Fraser. Scarce.

Bronner & Fraser 11. Smith, Friends' Books II:286. Wing P1392. ESTC R36662. One of the most important incidents in the early life of William Penn was his trial in September 1670 on charges of unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace. He and another Quaker, William Mead, were tried in the Old Bailey. The bench attempted to intimidate the jury into a guilty verdict, and although both men were found not guilty, they both served time in jail. In 1670 a pamphlet on the trial was produced, loosely attributed to Penn and called The Peoples Ancient and Just Liberties Asserted.... Samuel Starling, the Lord Mayor of London and one of the judges in the trial, responded with a pamphlet of his own the same year. In the present pamphlet Penn, assisted by Quaker lawyer Thomas Rudyard, offers his spirited response to Starling's work. "This pamphlet reflects a new side of [William Penn], for instead of the reasonable and cultivated gentleman and Quaker, we find a deeply incensed young man defending his father's honor [Penn's father helped secure his release from prison] and slashing out at his persecutor" - Bronner & Fraser. Penn defends his father's honor and military record, reviews the facts of his trial, and considers the power and role of juries.

An important and scarce early work on the role of the judiciary, by the future founder of Pennsylvania.

*A letter written to William Penn from one of his advisors, William Popple, outlining the suspicions and accusations against him regarding his religious faith and purported actions in the name of Catholicism. The letter is followed by a savvy response by Penn, refuting the allegations, and encouraging religious freedom. In 1688 the birth of a Catholic heir, James Francis Edward, sent England into upheaval with speculation of a Catholic conspiracy. Penn's friendship with James II enticed scrutiny of his private life by those opposed to the king and a myriad of rumors regarding Penn's faith were quickly circulated. Faithfully Rendered out of French. London: Printed by T. Ratcliff, for H. Robinson and G. Thomason, 1664. 1st English ed. Folio. [13],450:[4],248pp. Two parts in one. Early 19th-century calf double-ruled in gilt, rebaked in period style elaborate gilt calf. Light toning and foxing, else very good. $5000.00

Wing S296A. With the bookplate of William Penn on verso of title page. This is a very clean copy of Penn's 1703 armorial bookplate, as determined by Anthony Aucott. This work is a record of the Jansenist controversy as told by one of its supporters. Jansenism emphasized original sin, human depravity, and emphasized divine grace and predestination. Molinism attempts to reconcile God's providence with man's free will. This work was published at the time when Penn was wrestling with his own spiritual development and becoming a Quaker. This volume was sold as lot 882 in the auction by the family of William Penn's library in 1872.

This collection of striking views is one of the few contemporary publications to illustrate scenes from the American Revolution. The first leaf is an engraved title with explanatory text and vignettes of battles. The plates illustrate the tarring and feathering of a tax collector; the battle of Lexington; the surrender at Saratoga; the attack of French forces on the island of Dominica; the surrender of Senegal; the capture of Grenada; Galvez capturing Pensacola; the capture of Tobago; the surrender of Cornwallis; three more scenes of fighting on Guadeloupe; two maps; and the final plate is a series of vignettes commemorating the Treaty of Versailles in 1783.

In a half morocco and cloth folding case, spine gilt. $1250.00

Richard Price was a well-known British Presbyterian minister and the author of several notable books about moral philosophy and economics. He was particularly friendly with a number of Americans, and vigorously argued their part in the British debate over colonial taxation and government. Price's OBSERVATIONS ON THE NATURE OF CIVIL LIBERTY... was one of the most important pro-American works published as the debate neared its crisis in 1776. It first appeared in February 1776 in London and went through numerous British and American editions. The following year Price produced his ADDITIONAL OBSERVATIONS... as a sequel to the earlier work. THE GENERAL INTRODUCTION AND SUPPLEMENT... was published in 1778, and is present here in one of two issues of the first edition. Price used this work to clarify points he made earlier, and to further advance his arguments. Adams notes that it is often found bound up with varying editions of the two earlier works (which explains the pagination), though here it is on its own. AMERICAN CONTROVERSY 78-88b. HOWES P584.

NAIP w012870. Hildebrun 2859, 2881. DNB (cd/rom). Evans 12684. Cohen 5369. Eller 256. Second edition, after the first of the previous year. William Shippen's copy, who served as surgeon-general of Washington's army, of this important compilation of six works relating to Blackstone's seminal COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF ENGLAND, known universally as simply, "The Commentaries." Included are "Priestley's Remarks on Some Paragraphs in the Fourth Volume of Blackstone's Commentaries, Relating to the Dissenters," "Blackstone's Reply to Priestley's Remarks," "Priestley's Answer to Blackstone's Reply," "The Case of the Late Election of the County of Middlesex Considered....," "Furneaux's Letters to the Hon. Mr. Justice Blackstone Concerning his Exposition of the Act of Toleration....," and "Authentic Copies of the Argument of the late Hon. Mr. Justice Foster...." The first five titles appear with individual titlepages. British law was, understandably, a much debated topic in 1773 America, and no political text had created more of a debate in British legal circles than Blackstone's COMMENTARIES.... Though all of the present texts had been previously printed in various sources, this collection by Robert Bell offered its readers a condensed version of some of the more contested points. From 1771 to 1772, Bell had published the first American edition of the COMMENTARIES; he intended the present text to serve as a fifth volume to that set. Bell, of course, would later print COMMON SENSE. A nice American printing of British legal discourse. Scarce.

This is a basic work for any collection along similar lines. "Prince spent seven years in the preparation of this work...it was carefully compiled from a large number of authentic records and relations, mostly in the exact words of the respective authorities..." - Church. Complete in and of itself, though a "Volume II" was published in 1755 as ANNALS OF NEW ENGLAND. "Our most scholarly colonial work" - Howes. This copy brought $20 at the Menzies sale in 1875.*

The error concerns Grenville's proposition to the colonies concerning the Stamp Act. This edition also contains an added letter from Governor Johnstone, to the Chairman of the East India Company, at the time when the proposition for sending the Company's tea to America was under consideration.*

133. QUINCY, Josiah JR. Observations on the Act of Parliament, Commonly Called the Boston Port-Bill; With Thoughts on Civil Society and Standing Armies[caption title]. Boston:

Printed for and sold by Edes and Gill, 1774. [2],82pp. Gathered signatures, stitched as issued. Scattered tanning, foxing, and soiling. About very good. Untrimmed. $12,500.00
*This pamphlet presents the author's case against the first of the Intolerable Acts, which established the blockade of the Boston harbor. The Bill was passed in March 1774, in the wake of the Boston Tea Party in December 1773. The closing of Boston harbor, and the other Intolerable Acts, did more to bring together public opinion in the colonies than crush their spirit, and led directly to the calling of the First Continental Congress. Josiah Quincy, Jr. was a leading figure in Massachusetts patriotic circles. Unfortunately, he would not live to see the revolution, as he died of consumption on a journey back from England in 1775, where he had treated with British politicians on behalf of the American cause. In this work he excoriates Parliament for punishment of a whole community in response to the acts of private persons, likewise attacking standing armies as "armed monsters," "fatal to religion, morals, and social happiness" as well as liberty. A major political argument against the Crown's unjust actions, and a critical work on the road to Revolution. Often reprinted, this is the first edition. HOWES Q18. EVANS 13561. SABIN 67192. Evans 21442. Rink 2924. Norman 1859. This is one of the pioneering works on steamboats, a revolution in technology of profound implications. Rumsey, a machinist by trade, was a pioneer in steam propulsion. As early as 1784 he exhibited to George Washington a model of a boat for stemming the current of rivers by steam power. The Short Treatise initiated a controversy in the late 1780's between Rumsey and John Fitch over who had priority over their respective steam-powered boats. Fitch was the first to publicize his invention and obtained a fourteen-year privilege for the manufacture of steam vessels, giving him a virtual monopoly of its production in America. As a reply to Fitch's Original Steamboat Supported (1788), Rumsey issued the present pamphlet. This is the corrected reissue of Rumsey's A Plan, Wherein the Power of Steam is Fully Shewn (1788).

A rare work on the history of the early wars with Native Americans on the New England frontier, written by the first president of the University of Vermont. Beginning with the earliest interactions of white settlers and native populations, Sanders carries the tale all the way through General Hull's surrender the year this was written. While none too kind to Native Americans, this book was one of the earliest to outwardly criticize the attitudes of colonial New Englanders towards indigenous populations. "This book aroused bitter criticism because of its strictures on colonial bigotry and cruelty to the natives..." - Streeter. Bibliographers long told the story of its suppression to only a handful of copies, but while there certainly were bitter reviews and the work is quite rare, more recent bibliographers (notably Marcus McCorison in VERMONT IMPRINTS) have suggested that rumors of its wholesale destruction were greatly exaggerated. It is now considered one of the best overall histories of American frontier conflict. The author, Daniel C. Clarke, was a Massachusetts native who became a teacher and preacher after graduating from Harvard. As the first president of the University of Vermont, he was also its sole instructor for the first six years, personally attending to every course, maintaining the buildings, and even performing much of the groundwork himself. Tragedy struck Clarke in 1812, when the college was forcefully taken and converted into a barracks by American military forces: "Sanders at this time was almost overwhelmed with misfortunes: his book, A HISTORY., published anonymously at Montpelier in 1812, had aroused bitter criticism because of its strictures on colonial bigotry and cruelty to the natives; his wife was a victim of occasional attacks of insanity; five of his eight children had recently died in an epidemic. Now he was without employment and with few resources save a claim on the University for arrears of salary" - DAB. He ultimately pulled through his troubles, living several more decades in relative quiet as a preacher. CHURCH 1306. HOWES S84, "aa." PILLING 3474. FIELD 1351.

The "Holster Atlas": one of the most important atlases of the American Revolution, designed for use in the field. The "Holster Atlas" was issued at the suggestion of Governor George Pownall and included the "maps that the British high command regarded as providing essential topographical information in the most convenient form" (Schwartz & Ehrenberg).

This collection of maps was published by Sayer and Bennet at the beginning of the Revolution for the use of British officers. "Surveys and Topographical Charts being fit only for a Library, such maps as an Officer may take with him into the Field have been much wanted. The following Collection forms a Portable Atlas of North America, calculated in its Bulk and Price to suit the Pockets of Officers of all Ranks" (Advertisement). Although the publishers claimed the atlas would fit into an officer's pocket, it was more usually carried in a holster and thus gained its nickname. The atlas was generally bound in an octavo format, as is the case in this copy.

The six maps are as follows:

1) Dunn, Samuel: NORTH AMERICA, AS DIVIDED AMONGST THE EUROPEAN POWERS. BY SAMUEL DUNN, MATHEMATICIAN. London: printed for Robt. Sayer, Jan. 10, 1774. Engraved map, handcolored in outline (13½ x 18¼ inches). Engraved for Dunn's A NEW ATLAS (London, 1774).

2) Dunn, Samuel: A COMPLEAT MAP OF THE WEST INDIES, CONTAINING THE COASTS OF FLORIDA, LOUISIANA, NEW SPAIN, AND TERRA FIRMA: WITH ALL THE ISLANDS. London: Robt. Sayer, Jan. 10, 1774. Engraved map, handcolored in outline (13¼ x 18½ inches). Engraved for Dunn's A NEW ATLAS (London, 1774). The "Advertisement" describes these first two maps as "a general map of the part of the globe, called North America, and a second general map of those islands, shores, gulfs, and bays, which form what is commonly called the West Indies; these we consider as introductory, and as giving a general idea, and we trust a just one."

3) A GENERAL MAP OF THE NORTHERN BRITISH COLONIES IN AMERICA. WHICH COMPREHENDS THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, THE GOVERNMENT OF NEWFOUNDLAND, NOVA-SCOTIA, NEW-ENGLAND AND NEW-YORK. FROM THE MAPS PUBLISHED BY THE ADMIRALTY AND BOARD OF TRADE, REGULATED BY THE ASTRONOMIC AND TRIGONOMETRIC OBSERVATIONS OF MAJOR HOLLAND AND CORRECTED FROM GOVERNOR POWNALL'S LATE MAP 1776. London: Robt. Sayer & Jno. Bennet, Aug. 14, 1776. Engraved map, handcolored in outline (20_ x 26_ inches). First state, also issued as a separate map. This map was re-issued in 1788 with the title changed to reflect the new political realities. McCORKLE, NEW ENGLAND 776.11. SELLERS & VAN EE 143. STEVENS & TREE 65.

4) Evans, Lewis: A GENERAL MAP OF THE MIDDLE BRITISH COLONIES, IN AMERICA. CONTAINING VIRGINIA, MARYLAND, THE DELAWARE COUNTIES, PENNSYLVANIA AND NEW JERSEY. WITH THE ADDITION OF NEW YORK, AND THE GREATEST PART OF NEW ENGLAND, AS ALSO OF THE BORDERING PARTS OF THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, IMPROVED FROM SEVERAL SURVEYS MADE AFTER THE LATE WAR, AND CORRECTED FROM GOVERNOR POWNALL'S LATE MAP 1776. London: R. Sayer & J. Bennet, Oct. 15, 1776. Engraved map, handcolored in outline (20½ x 26 inches). Based on Lewis Evans map of 1755, with additions and corrections. STEPHENSON & McKEE, VIRGINIA, p.82 (an image of the Evans map).

5) Romans, Bernard: A GENERAL MAP OF THE SOUTHERN BRITISH COLONIES, IN AMERICA. COMPREHENDING NORTH AND SOUTH CAROLINA, GEORGIA, EAST AND WEST FLORIDA, WITH THE NEIGHBOURING INDIAN COUNTRIES. FROM THE MODERN SURVEYS OF ENGINEER DE BRAHM, CAPT. COLLET, MOUZON & OTHERS; AND FROM THE LARGE HYDROGRAPHICAL SURVEY OF THE COASTS OF EAST AND WEST FLORIDA. BY B. ROMANS. London: R. Sayer & J. Bennett [sic], Oct. 15, 1776. Engraved map, handcolored in outline (21¼ x 26 inches). Based on charts and maps by Romans and others.

6) Brassier, William Furness: A SURVEY OF LAKE CHAMPLAIN INCLUDING LAKE GEORGE, CROWN POINT AND ST. JOHN, SURVEYED BY ORDER OF...SR. JEFFERY AMHERST...BY WILLIAM BRASSIER, DRAUGHTSMAN. 1762. London: Robt. Sayer & Jno. Bennet, Aug. 5, 1776. Engraved map, handcolored in outline (28 x 20½ inches). Also issued as the first separately published map of Lake Champlain, this excellent detailed chart was based on a survey made during the French and Indian War, but not published until the Revolution. The map was issued in two states and is included here in its appropriate (and preferred) second state, illustrating the very first battle fought by the U.S. Navy: the Battle of Valcour Island, which transpired near present-day Plattsburgh, New York. The inset in the lower right corner of the map features an extremely detailed rendering of Lake George, surveyed by British Captain Jackson in 1756. No mention, of course, is made of Ethan Allen's taking of Fort Ticonderoga in 1775.

Scarce. Issued to celebrate the bicentenary of the Royal land grant to William Penn. It includes a history of Pennsylvania and a program of the celebrations. Most of the pages are given over to descriptions of the elaborate tableaux vivants. The first ten tableaux portray Penn receiving his charter, the early history of the colony, and the Revolution. They then turned to portrayals of illustrious women from mythology and history beginning with Juno and the peacock, through Queen Elizabeth to Josephine. The final 15 tableaux are devoted to Hindu mythology telling the life of Rama. In addition, there are several pictorial advertisements.

*First British edition, following the New York edition of the previous year. Samuel Seabury was first bishop of the Episcopal Church in America. At the outset of the American Revolution "Seabury and his colleagues began their major literary struggle to keep the colonies loyal to the Crown. His most important pamphlets were signed A.W. Farmer" (DAB). Alexander Hamilton, at age seventeen, replied to Seabury's FREE THOUGHTS... with A FULL VINDICATION OF THE MEASURES OF THE CONGRESS.... This sparked a pamphlet war between the two, which produced three more publications by Seabury and another one by Hamilton. Through the present work and other pamphlets, Seabury sought to nullify the measures enacted by the Continental Congress. "Seabury was the pre-eminent exponent of Tory thought in America" - Howes. The first large-scale map of Georgia, together with the finest plan of one of the American South's most interesting early settlements.

Importantly, this composition includes the first large-scale map that specifically focuses on Georgia, engraved by Tobias Conrad Lotter, which takes up most of the left side of the sheet. The map embraces all of the coastal regions from St. Augustine, Florida up to Charleston, South Carolina. In the centre of the map is the grid outline of the city of Savannah, the capital of Georgia, founded by James Oglethorpe in 1733. The map details all major settlements, and the trails that connect them. The coast's numerous islands are highlighted in different colours, creating an attractive aesthetic effect. In the lower right corner of this map is an inset detailing St. Simon's Island, the location of a British settlement and Fort Frederica, which was built to protect Georgia's southern flank from both the Spaniards and marauding pirates.

The right side of the sheet is dominated by the Plan von Neu Ebenezar, the finest cartographic record of one of the American South's most interesting early settlements. The 'Salzburgers' were a group of Lutherans who fled persecution in heavily Catholic Austria. In 1734, the English Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, a Protestant activist group, sponsored a party of Salzburgers to emigrate to Georgia. They founded the Ebenezar Settlement on a small tributary of the Savannah River (depicted on the previous map), but soon found the location to be unsuitable, and moved their settlement to 'New Ebenezar' on the main river itself. This map is a large detailed plan of this settlement, which was actually designed by Oglethorpe himself, directly modelled on the grid of Savannah. A key describes various features of this plan, including the location of market squares, public gardens and housing plots. Outside of the town, are details such as plantations, pasturelands, orchards, and a mill. The composition is finely adorned with a rococo title cartouche, featuring a native bird and flora, and a two-masted ship sailing down the Savannah River. Related to this plan, is the diagram at the lower left of the sheet, an encyclopedic view of the town's mill.

These two maps were originally published on separate sheets, and appeared in Samuel Urlsberger's promotional tract, Aussfürliche Nachricht von den Saltzburischen. This tract was published in parts between 1735 and 1752, and was specifically intended for prospective German immigrants to Georgia. The present maps comprise the most desirable issue, being printed together on a single sheet. This version was included in some copies of the composite atlases published by Seutter in Augsburg. Evans 21381. NAIP w030522. Dumond, p.91. Reese, The Federal Hundred 14 (ref.). This edition follows and enlarges upon the constitution of the Society as published in 1787. The Pennsylvania Society for Promoting the Abolition of Slavery, and the Relief of Free Negroes Unlawfully Held in Bondage was founded in 1774 by Anthony Benezet, and most of its members were Quakers. The officers of the Society included Benjamin Franklin as president, Benjamin Rush and Tench Coxe as secretaries, and Thomas Paine serving as clerk of the General Assembly. Franklin and Rush helped write the Society's constitution. Following the society's constitution and list of officers, the remainder of the present pamphlet reprints a series of acts governing slavery in Pennsylvania. These include "An Act for the Gradual Abolition of Slavery," "An Act to give Relief to certain Persons taking Refuge in this State, with respect to their slaves," and an additional act of March 1788 amending the original act for gradual abolition. This last act is prefixed by a report of the committee of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania. In 1788, as a result of petitions from the Society, the Pennsylvania legislature amended the gradual abolition act of 1780, prohibiting the transportation of slave children or pregnant women out of Pennsylvania, making it illegal to build, outfit, or issue slave ships from Philadelphia, and imposing heavier fines for the kidnapping of slaves.

Sabin 84566. Howes S-703, "b." Streeter Sale 871. Church 1023. Larned 1109. This is the first edition of the first history of New York, based largely on the works of Charlevoix and Colden's HISTORY OF THE FIVE NATIONS.... Smith also drew from the journals of the Assembly and the Legislative Council. He was a graduate of Yale who became a distinguished New York lawyer and eventually justice of the province. A Loyalist during the Revolution, he moved to Canada at the war's conclusion and there became a chief justice. This history covers the period up to 1736. Smith wrote a continuation which remained in manuscript form until it was published by the New-York Historical Society in 1826. The plate is entitled "The South View of Oswego on Lake Ontario" and shows the buildings and forts along the Onondaga River where it joins Lake Ontario. "Within the period subsequent to the English Revolution, Smith is still without a successful rival. This work ranks with Stith's VIRGINIA and Hutchinson's MASSACHUSETTS, as one of the worthiest examples of historical literature produced in later colonial times" - Larned. Smith was not a Revolutionary and strongly hoped for a peaceful resolution to the conflict. He felt honor-bound to deliver his views in this oration. After the speech's chilly reception, he asked Benjamin Franklin for criticism of the text before publication. "The Congress was so annoyed with some of the things Smith said in this Oration that it refused to vote him thanks. He had it printed himself after omitting some of the more offensive passages" -Adams, American Independence, 228a. "In making this address before Continental Congress, Smith aroused stupefaction and hostility by suggesting appeasement with England" Howes.

HOWES S-696. Sabin 85657. American Independence 196g. DAB XVII, pp.353-57. An important sermon, delivered shortly after the Battle of Bunker Hill. Its author, William Smith (1727-1803), was an Anglican clergyman, teacher, and first provost of the College, Academy, and Charitable School of Philadelphia. Although Smith opposed the Stamp Act and argued strongly for full rights and representation of the American colonies, he did not favor independence - a position that placed him, at the outset of the Revolution, in "an embarrassing predicament" (DAB). This sermon, preached before Congress at Christ Church, Philadelphia, 28 June 1775, "...created a great sensation. It went through many editions and was translated into several foreign languages. It opposed British measures and awakened patriotism, but in its preface Smith professed himself as 'ardently panting for a return of those Halcyon-days of harmony' and as 'animated with purest zeal for the mutual interests of Great-Britain and the Colonies'" (DAB).

 HOWES S-914, "b." Gephart 1033. Lowndes V, p.2504. Reese, Revolutionary Hundred 89. Sabin 91057. "This work is fundamental to any collection of books relating to the American Revolution"-Reese. "Stedman's history is generally considered the best contemporary account of the Revolution written from the British side. Stedman entered the army, served as an officer under Lord Percy at Lexington in 1775, and subsequently with Lord Howe in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and with Lord Cornwallis in the South"-Sabin. Stedman was a native of Philadelphia, who later became an examiner of Loyalist claims for the British government. He had firsthand knowledge of many of the campaigns and persons involved in the effort. He is critical of Howe, and describes all the major theaters of war, as well as individual battles from Bunker Hill to Yorktown.

The beautifully engraved maps (the largest of which is approximately 20 x 30 inches) constitute the finest collection of plans assembled by an eyewitness. They depict the sieges of Savannah and Charlestown, plus the battles of Saratoga, Camden, Guilford, Hobkirk's Hill, and Yorktown. With the bookplates of John Dorington of Lypiatt Park, Stroud, Gloucestershire.

HOWES S-951. Evans 279670. Reese, Revolutionary Hundred 59. Sabin 91425. A later 18th-century edition of this important military manual, written expressly for the use of American troops during the Revolutionary War. The German-born Steuben, well-trained in the highly disciplined military system developed under Frederick the Great, served as inspector general of the Continental Army. In this capacity, he wrote his Regulations for the Order and Discipline of the Troops of the United States on orders from the Continental Congress. First published in 1779, the work became the standard text for the Continental Army and the United States Army into the early 19th century. Fifty editions, abridgements, extracts, and adaptations were printed before 1800. Steuben's contribution to American independence cannot be underestimated. "He was unrivaled among the citizens of the new nation as an expert on military affairs. His introduction of European military concepts to the Continental army marks the beginning of a truly professional military tradition in the United States"--DNB. The first military manual devised for the Continental Army, still employed as the standard guide for militias in the early Federal period.
